FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Information Security Corp. Releases SecretAgent® Mobile

DEERFIELD, IL – July 1, 2004 — Information Security Corporation (ISC) today announced the immediate availability of SecretAgent Mobile for Microsoft Pocket PC 2002 and Windows Mobile 2003. Intended to simplify the management of sensitive documents stored on handheld devices, the latest version of ISC's leading security tool for the Pocket PC platform includes many enhancements: a new workflow paradigm, additional encryption options, ANSI-compliant digital signatures, automated key history management, and support for platform-independent security policies.

To promote ease-of-use and facilitate the sharing of encrypted archives, SecretAgent Mobile is the first member of the ISC product family to treat those archives as editable documents. The creator, or any designated recipient, of a SecretAgent archive can open (i.e., decrypt) it for viewing and/or editing. If SecretAgent Mobile detects any changes to the contents when the archive is closed, it will automatically re-encrypt it with its original recipient list intact. (Of course, a user can modify the recipient list, if they wish, before closing the archive.)

"For over a decade our government and corporate customers have found SecretAgent to be an invaluable tool in helping to protect their most sensitive data." said ISC President Thomas J. Venn. "By rethinking the way SecretAgent Mobile handles encrypted files, ISC continues to lead the market in producing innovative security tools." In fact, Gartner has placed ISC in the "Leaders" quadrant in their Magic Quadrant for Mobile Data Protection in 2003 and 2004.

Widely recognized for its standards compliance, exceptionally high level of security, user friendliness, and multi-platform interoperability, SecretAgent ensures the confidentiality and authenticity of sensitive files stored locally or sent via e-mail. Optional enterprise features (including centralized security policy management) make SecretAgent Mobile suitable for large organizations as well as private individuals.

Pricing and Availability

SecretAgent Mobile is currently available for worldwide shipment. The single-unit list price is $59.95. Site licenses and discounts for larger quantities are available. Customers with a maintenance contract covering existing SecretAgent for Pocket PC licenses may obtain a free upgrade to SecretAgent Mobile. Please note that fully interoperable builds of SecretAgent are available for all current Windows and most popular UNIX-based platforms (including Mac OS X) in either command line or graphical user interface versions.
